Abstract

The distribution of some tests on social media which obtained freely and easily by people can be used by anyone, anywhere, and anytime in millennium era. The test is not necessarily scientific and the results can't be trusted and / or can't be used for granted. The impact that can occur after following a test is the possibility of children who tend to be too confident (but not necessarily appropriate); on the contrary, children tend to feel slumped and depressed. This should be prevented by various part such as parents, teachers, counselor, and the community to avoid unexpected possibilities. To that end, the competent parties need to care and develop tests either in the form of adaptation or re-standardization of the test so as to get a good psychological test and can be used for the community.
